

Head of the Research Team:

Zsuzsa Londe received her bachelor's degree in Linguistics from University of California, Los Angeles, USA (summa cum laude) and an MA and Ph.D. degree in Applied Linguistics, also from University of California, Los Angeles, USA. Languages, language-teaching, research, assessment, and statistics are her ongoing academic interests. Working memory and its relationship to listening comprehension in a second language was the topic of her dissertation. Her research and publications with other colleagues have taken her to areas of generative linguistic, psycholinguistics and language-assessment. She very much enjoys teaching and attaches great importance to diversity, communication, and an encouraging, academic atmosphere in the classroom. She retired in 2019.

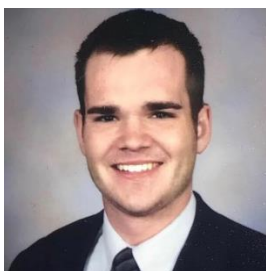

Team Leader:

Anita Santavec is a Ph.D. student at the Eötvös Loránd University, Hungary. She holds a bachelor's degree in Hungarian Literature & Language and a master's degree in Literary Theory. In her Ph.D. research, she is focusing on the fin de siècle literature from the theoretical aspects of the pictorial turn. She is both a regular participant of academic conferences, and an impassioned organizer of events on literature, culture, and languages. She loves taking part in cultural exchange programs and organize events to create opportunities for young researchers to share their experiences. She is passionate about her field of study and likes to encourage other people to commit themselves to their academic research. Anita is also a technical windsurfer. Her journey with the sport started when she was 7 years old. In 2019, she became an instructor.

Lilla Buda is currently working at a global management consulting and executive search firm, supporting the German team in Hungary. Prior to that, she lived in Germany for 5 years. She earned her bachelor's degree in Applied Foreign Languages at the University of Strasbourg, France, and her master's degree in Translation & Interpreting in English and German at the University of Miskolc, Hungary. Lilla is enthusiastic about calligraphy and handlettering.

Michael Cozart is in his last year as an undergraduate student in Political Science at Washington State University, USA. Besides his studies, he enjoys being involved in international student organizations, running, and is interested in psychology and Hungarian culture. After Graduation he will be pursuing a career, working with the international communities.

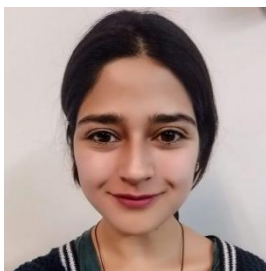

Maryana Hidayat comes from Indonesia and received her bachelor's degree in English Education at the University of Pakuan, Indonesia. Currently, she is pursuing her MA degree, majoring in English Studies at Eötvös Loránd University, Hungary. Over and above, Maryana engages herself in international student organizations and enjoys working in multicultural environment to broaden her network and knowledge. She also likes spending her free time by socializing and discovering new places.

Paul Christian Kouakou is a Ph.D. student at the University of Bamberg, Germany, and deals with postcolonialism. He studied German Literature and obtained his master's degree at the University of Félix-Houphouët-Boigny, Côte d'Ivoire. As supervisor of the Internet-Commission in the Goethe-Institut of Abidjan and chairman of the German Club of the University of Félix-Houphouët-Boigny, he organized many activities in the field of German culture and literature, environmental sustainability, and cultural crossovers. Outside of university life, Paul is fond of photography.

Márton Mészáros currently serves as Deputy Editor-in-Chief of the Hungarian art magazine, Premier. Beforehand, he was editor and journalist of Népszava, the oldest Hungarian daily newspaper, then worked in the same position for Magyar Hírlap, another popular daily newspaper. His works have already been published in more than thirty different Hungarian newspapers and magazines. He is the editor and secretary of Georges Ferdinandy, a contemporary Hungarian author, and the caretaker of his oeuvre. Márton graduated from the Eötvös Loránd University, Hungary, and holds a bachelor's degree in Hungarian Grammar & Literature, and a master's degree in Literary & Cultural Studies. In 2008, he founded a people's choice culture award, and more than fifty-five Hungarian artists received the Arany Medál-díj (Golden Medal Award).

Jessica Montezuma is a last year-undergraduate bachelor's degree student in English & French. Currently, she is an active part of the research group, called Semilleros de Investigación at the University of Nariño, Colombia. She loves being involved in cultural exchange programs and is passionate about teaching English as a foreign language (TESOL and EFL), as well as teaching English with specific purposes (ESP) to different communities, areas in which she is doing research. Besides her studies, she enjoys travelling and getting to know new cultures.